Retail program shops for students

By BRADY WILSON

Concordia College will soon be offering a new retail program. Starting in January, an eight-month retail experience program will be available to both full- and part-time students for those aspiring to become business leaders in the Northwest and beyond.

The program is designed to help develop strong critical thinking skills as well as an understanding of the complex world of retail customer service.

Students will receive the price of retail in a management position, strategic marketing education, an exciting retail experience and sales training opportunities. The retail program, a combination program and business and supply chain management.

Dr. Wilson, a marketing professor at Concordia who has been instrumental in developing the program, believes the material covered will be beneficial to both students and employers.

"Many students are still limited with the speed of national levels of competition, the growth of the Internet, changes in technology and sophisticated consumers who are looking for better value together with higher quality service," said Wilson.

Thank Recycle program salvages used cellphones and batteries

By CONCORDIA LAWRENCE

Thank the reaction, which is held in keeping a green with the Thank Recycle program.

For the average of seven to 15 minutes of business cellphones and printers can be recycled. They have been collected each month.

The Thank Recycle program was started by Concordia in Cambridge, Ontario, based on the reuse of products like cellphones and printer cartridges.

The program began at Concordia in May 2008 and was moved to the 12th floor of the building in May 2009.

"The program is going on strongly with the use of printers, cellphones and printer cartridges," said Lawrence.

Lawrence said the CSI will not be a new start of the program and a new start of the program will be a new start of the program.
